On bureau deals automation stops at the agent. The bureau owns contract, invoicing and client follow-up.

Repeat loop — a new deal re-enters at Intake. Repeats are 29% of all bookings.

Three changes the team will feel

1. Hold management moves into Airtable. Google Calendar survives and still shows everything, but the mirror runs one way — a hold added on the calendar does not flow back. This is the single biggest behavior change in the build.
2. Direct deals are paid in full before the keynote. Today it is 50% on signing and 50% by the event date, with the deposit often arriving a month late. This is a new sales motion for Liezel and the team, not a system default.
3. Stages 11 and 12 exist for the first time. The debrief is committed at the kick-off call rather than chased afterwards, and closed-lost deals get re-engaged instead of being filed in a sheet nothing points at.

Sequencing: sales process and its automation first; cash flow once that foundation and its supporting systems are in place.
